

After the Clamor Has Passed

(Vincennes Commercial)

Roosevelt came to the National Convention like a roaring lion, and went back home to Oyster Bay like a gentle little lamb. Had Roosevelt maintained the dignity of a mighty statesman he still could be in the ring, but instead, he adopted the tactics of a quarrelsome boss, and the policy of rule or ruin. His recent aggregation of delegates came to Chicago determined to war upon the Republican party, to ruin it if they could not capture it, and to disgrace it with fads and fancies if they came into possession. So we may say today that those Republicans who believe in the record that the party has made, who believe in its dignity and honor, and who have great pride in its history may well bless this day that we have gotten rid of a big lot of bad rubbish.

The Republican party has gone through the fiery furnace of trials and tribulations before. In 1896 there was widespread consternation and condemnation upon the action of the St. Louis convention which nominated McKinley. Thank God, that the good, sound, sober sense of a sane and sensible people came to the rescue of the nation, and our country was saved from financial ruin as a result of that awful free silver campaign.

We are now face to face with another condition that perhaps may not be so serious, but is just as irritating and unfortunate. A house may fall when it is divided against itself; but the Republican structure is an enduring structure that ought to live on forever in the hearts of honest people. It is a structure that should not be seriously attacked by malevolent and hateful self-seekers, whose sole purpose is to elevate and enthroned themselves.

The opposition in Chicago was controlled by a self-seeking crowd, who are angry at those in power and want to put them out. The present organization of the party and administration, have steadfastly clung to all of the legal forms of political organization, while the new crowd was bitterly opposed to the old forms and demanded an establishment of new forms and in their final endeavor they made such a mess of the whole business that they brought on only chaos and confusion.

The Republican party is a business party, a voluntary association organized for the purpose of protecting the right of the people, and there was absolutely no reason for the clash and clamor that has been brought about. And we now view with concern the threat of this "progressive" faction to still further attack the Republican party. Its false alarms are all vague and meaningless, meant to but disconcert the people.

There is surely something more in the greatness and goodness of the Republican party than the mere ambition of one man. If this were not true, there would be no Republican party. Its chief antagonist is the Democratic party, and these two old parties have been viciously attacked from time to time by new parties and new "isms."

Sometimes, when a little clique of men get an idea, they form a party, and so Roosevelt, brimming over with vanity, thought he had an idea, and he was going to Chicago to present it. When he arrived there and discovered that the legal forms of the Republican organization had to be followed in a legal way his "idea" vanished, or, in other words, the idea he thought he had, he failed to present. But he started in on a campaign of epithets and the faithful old Republican party never found out what his "idea" was. It may have been Roosevelt for King—who knows?

We have no doubt but that he thinks he is the God of mankind, and because he was unrecognized as a saint, or God, or king, he became bewildered, and plaintively shouted from every housetop that all men who disagreed with him were stealers and plunders of the virtue of the Republican party—he had the "steel" trust behind him paying the bills!

One story, told in the lobbies of the hotels, is that Roosevelt, in the middle of winter, demanded of President Taft that he be given a commission to organize a Cowboy regiment to go down to the Mexico country and steal it. This is part of Roosevelt's ambition to be a king! But good, staunch, old man Taft turned him down, and now, because Taft refused to let Teddy steal Mexico, Teddy charges Taft with stealing the whole Republican party!

Thank God, this morning we are safe and sane! Thank God, we still have an unbroken country! Thank God, that sober, sound, sane common sense will soon come to our rescue. When our minds are filled with emotion, we cannot think. When our hearts are filled with hate, we cannot reason. And when vulgar and unreasonable passion is in full sway it is not time to make laws, count votes, or think of the best things for the welfare of this country. The Republican party was safely guided through a maelstrom of prejudice and passion of malice and mischief, of hatred, envy and malediction. We now turn our backs on yesterday to take up the truth of today.

DEATH REVEALS THE SKELETON IN CLOSET

Pennsylvanian Chained to Floor for Twenty Years.

Pittsburg, July 17.—Harry Munshower, aged thirty-six, after being chained to a floor ring in a room in a lonesome farmhouse for more than twenty years, now is spending his time among 1,500 persons, the first time in his life he has ever been in a crowd. He is at the state asylum for the insane at Dixmont, where he was delivered yesterday in a pine box. When the box was opened under the eyes of Superintendent Hutchinson, the insane man was found bound hand and foot and only able to move his head from side to side. Dr. Hutchinson says he is not violent, merely weak minded.

The man is a son of S. S. Munshower, a farmer of White township, who died July 1. It was while arranging for the funeral that neighbors discovered the insane man. It was thought years ago that Harry had run away and that he was never heard of again by the family. But during all these years he has been locked in a room and chained, that the family tragedy might not be known.

Victim of a Runaway.

Michigan City, Ind., July 17.—The body of Charles Rapp, a farmer, aged seventy, was found beneath his overturned buggy in a creek near Chesterton, Porter county. He started to drive home from Chesterton, and it is supposed that the horse ran away or that Rapp drove out of the road and rolled down the bank.

TERSE TELEGRAMS

AN INTERESTING INTERVIEW

In Accepting the Congratulations of the Visiting Committeemen, Candidate For Vice President Closes His Acknowledgment by Pledging All Hands to Loyalty and Devotion to Woodrow Wilson, Head of Ticket.

Indianapolis, July 17.—In concluding his address of acknowledgment of the congratulations of the visiting members of the Democratic national committee, Governor Marshall, candidate for vice president, said:

"It was the custom in the Roman empire, when a new emperor was crowned, for the legions to pass in front of him and the leader of each legion to swear loyalty to the immortal gods of Rome and to the emperor and then for each man in the ranks to lift high his hand to heaven and say: 'This for me! This for me!' Gentlemen of the national committee, at the opening of this campaign for the people, may I ask you and each of you, to join me in lifting your hands to the gods of America and pledging loyalty and devotion to Woodrow Wilson. 'This for me! This for me!'"

John I. Martin of St. Louis, the veteran sergeant-at-arms of the committee, came with the visitors to greet Governor Marshall. Under his leadership the assembled Democrats gave three cheers for Wilson and Marshall, three for the national committee and three for Taggart, who, Martin said, was the "only Taggart in the United States."

Following the meeting in the governor's office, the visiting committeemen went for an hour's automobile ride about the city, as guests of Taggart. Following the ride, they were guests of Mr. Taggart at luncheon. All were invited to go to French Lick as guests of Taggart, but most of them declined, pleading they had been away from home so long they must hasten back.

STILL A MYSTERY

Why Did the Cashier of Geneva Bank Hang Himself?

Geneva, Ind., July 17.—At present the suicide of William B. Hale, assistant cashier of the Bank of Geneva, who hanged himself, is an unsolved mystery in this town. The report that the bank examiners who are looking over the bank's books had pronounced them correct is not true, but President Briggs says he believes the accounts were not juggled. Though Mr. Briggs says he is puzzled as to the cause of the suicide, he says Hale was a free spender of his own money, and that he had domestic troubles. Mr. Briggs said that Hale, finding he had lived beyond his means, decided to end all.

Harry L. Arnold, chief of the banking department of the state auditor's office, is in charge of the examination. Although Mr. Arnold declined to give any information, it is known that the state banking department has not been satisfied with the manner in which the bank was conducted, and as long ago as last fall notified the bank officers that they must track closer to the law. Bank Examiner Thomas, who has charge of this territory, has visited the bank several times, and each time reported to Mr. Arnold that he was not entirely satisfied.

Must Cut Out the Booze.

Anderson, Ind., July 17.—William Bailey of Alexandria and William Blier of Elwood, convicted of grand larceny for driving from Elwood with a farmer's horse and buggy without the owner's consent, have been paroled by Judge Bagot because of good reputations previously and also because they were intoxicated at the time. One of the conditions of the parole is that neither of the men become intoxicated again.

Run Down by Fast Train.

Muncie, Ind., July 17.—Harry A. Howard, aged forty, whose home was in Summitville, was killed by a fast Big Four train in the western part of town. At the time of the accident there were several engines on nearby tracks, and it is supposed he became bewildered by the lights and sounds and stepped out of the way of one train only to be struck by the other.

Crotian Laborers Cause Trouble.

Decatur, Ind., July 17.—Following the conviction of seven Crotian laborers for rioting and driving a farmer and his wife from their home, two foreigners of the same gang took a horse and buggy from Simon Klopfenstein, a farmer. The police captured the men, and it was learned that revenge was the motive for their act, because their friends are in prison.

Fatal Motorcycle Accident.

Hammond, Ind., July 17.—While driving his motorcycle at sixty miles an hour, near Rossville, J. L. Fifta of this city was crowded off the road by an automobile. He ran into two other men and they were slightly injured. Fifta will die.

OROZCO DENOUNCED BY HIS FOLLOWERS

Declared to Be a Traitor to the Cause.

Washington, July 17.—As a result of the announced intention of General Orozco, the rebel leader, to carry on a guerilla warfare in Sonora considerable alarm is being felt by Americans in the state of Sonora, Mexico, and in the border towns of Arizona and New Mexico. Reports thus far received do not indicate that Orozco is making much headway in his plan.

It is reported that a band of 700 rebels is operating south of Agua Prieta, in Sonora. A force of rebels is active in the state of Morelos and committing many depredations.

The war department has received from Colonel E. Z. Steever, commanding the United States forces at El Paso, the text of a proclamation being circulated in El Paso and Juarez, denouncing General Orozco as a traitor and offering a large reward for his capture. This proclamation is signed by officers and others of the revolutionary forces. It is recited in the proclamation that General Orozco is a traitor, that he has betrayed his followers for the sake of his personal advancement. The rebel leader is accused of having needlessly exposed his followers to death in the battlefield with resulting loss of thousands of lives, while he has remained far in the rear.

The fact that General Orozco has spent most of his time in a private car pointed out as proof of his infidelity to the cause of the revolutionary forces, and it is declared that he has amassed a fortune of $500,000 on deposit in the banks of El Paso. Others of his leaders are declared to have grown rich off the revolution.

Mistook Poison For Wine.

Bucharest, July 17.—At the wedding of a postal clerk here a poisonous acid was served by mistake for wine and the bride and bridegroom and seventeen relatives and friends emptied their glasses to happiness. Instantly there were shrieks of pain and the bride fell to the floor. Before medical aid arrived she and the bridegroom were both dead. Several of the others may die.

POLICE SYSTEM UNDER SHADOW

SEVEN MEN WERE IN THE PLOT

But District Attorney Says the Elimination of the Gambler Who Had "Squealed" Was of So Much Advantage to Police "System" That Death Must Be Laid at the Door of Police Terrorists.

New York, July 17.—The men who shot down Herman Rosenthal, the gambler, in front of the Hotel Metropole a few hours before he was to reveal to District Attorney Whitman the names of gamblers who could tell what policemen had been getting protection money are known to the police.

Police Commissioner Waldo, Deputy Police Commissioner Dougherty and Inspector Hughes wrung a confession from Louis Libby and William Shapiro, who owned the touring car that was used in the murder raid on the Metropole. Shapiro, who drove the car, broke down after hours of questioning, and told the police that seven men were in the plot to kill Rosenthal and that four were actually concerned in the killing.

The minute this confession had been extracted from Shapiro, 150 plainclothes men were sent scurrying to every part of the city and the police were saying confidently that within a few hours the assassins of Rosenthal would be jailed. Libby and Shapiro were charged with homicide and John Clark, a gambler of several aliases, was held as a material witness.

The question that everybody was asking, "Who had so much to fear from Rosenthal that they took the desperate chance of slaying him almost in the presence of half a dozen policemen?" was answered by the police department flatly and positively: "The gamblers who hated Rosenthal and who have been driven out of business by his unprecedented 'squel'."

Lieutenant Charles Becker of the strong arm squad, accused by Rosenthal of grabbing 20 per cent of the profits of Rosenthal's gambling house, and who was to be investigated by the district attorney because of this accusation, hastened to deny that he had any hand in the killing or that he had the slightest idea who killed his accuser. And Becker is held to be guilty by the commissioner.

But District Attorney Whitman, after hours of digging into the circumstances of the murder, put forward a plain suggestion that the elimination of Rosenthal was of so much advantage to what he termed the "police system," that the death must be laid at the door of police terrorists. Mr. Whitman said that whether or not gamblers fired the shots that dropped Rosenthal in the doorway of the Metropole, he could not believe otherwise than that the responsibility lay elsewhere.

The killing of the main witness in the grand jury investigation to determine whether gambling in the tenderloin had been allowed to exist because of a system of police partnership with the gamblers, will not cause the investigation to be dropped, said Mr. Whitman. He had already obtained from Rosenthal the names of ten gamblers, and these will be examined under the Dowling law. And Mrs. Rosenthal, the district attorney says, stands ready to supply the grand jury with intimate details of her husband's business.

Farm Hand's Serious Injury.

Logansport, Ind., July 17.—While Chester Hopkins, employed on a farm north of the city, was working in the fields, the cultivator seat on which he was riding broke and he was thrown to the ground. He had the reins thrown across his neck and shoulders, and when he fell the reins tightened and jerked the team back. The sharp times of the cultivator sank into Hopkins's body and he was unable to get up. He lay for nearly two hours before his cries for help were heard. He was unconscious, and it was discovered that one of the lines had punctured a lung and four of his ribs are broken.

He Was Crazy by Drugs.

Tampa, Fla., July 17.—Bob Harris, a negro, ran amuck here, killed three persons, wounded two others, one of whom was white, and was himself slain by policemen after a siege in which gasoline was used to burn him out of a house. He was crazed by drugs.

Archibald Must Appear Friday.

Washington, July 17.—The senate formally received the articles of impeachment against Judge Robert W. Archibald of the commerce court and issued a subpoena to that jurist directing him to appear next Friday at 12:30 and make answer to the charges.

Farmer Killed by Lightning.

Attica, Ind., July 17.—James Zimmerman, a farmer, twenty-five years old, living two miles from this city, was struck by lightning and instantly killed. The lightning struck him on the forehead.

Health Board Will Search For Flies, Bedbugs and Mosquitoes

The State Board of Health will inspect all summer resorts and those scoring less than 80 per cent. on the sanitary scale will be closed up as dangerous to the public health, writes Dr. J. N. Hurty. The scoring will be based upon general cleanliness, sewage and garbage disposal, water supply, presence of flies, mosquitoes, bedbugs and rats, quality and handling of the food supply.

The best advertisement for a summer resort is to be able to say it is sanitary. People with money (and money can not be made out of people who haven't it) are pretty likely, these days, to demand surroundings which are free from disease-breeding conditions.

Outdoor shanty toilets, which are certain sooner or later to become offensive and disease breeding, are not tolerated by first-class, prompt pay people. The summer resort keeper who does not know this and who does not act accordingly is found to do a bum business. The expense of installing a sanitary disposal system, even at primitive frame hotels, is not prohibitive. It is only a little more costly than nothing at all or than the horrid disease-breeding kind still so frequently in evidence. Upon request the State Board of Health will send free, to any one, an illustrated pamphlet upon this subject. But the installation of a sanitary disposal plant is not all that must be done to protect against typhoid fever, dysentery and diarrhea.

Carriers of these infections among the servants must be looked for. Those who are to handle foods should be asked if they have had typhoid, either mildly or severely, within the preceding six months. If any such person be found, he or she is very likely to be a carrier, and not until proved free from infection by skilled medical examination should employment be given. A typhoid or dysentery carrier is certain to transmit his infection, unless scrupulous personal cleanliness with disinfection of hands is practiced.

There are other diseases besides typhoid fever and dysentery which may be transmitted by servants. The Indiana statutes forbid the employment of persons for handling or preparing foods who are affected with venereal or other transmissible disease. Hotel keepers are under penalty and liable in damages if their employees transmit disease to guests.

Refrigerators, vegetable bins and every and all kinds of food receptacles must be carefully looked after. Every summer reports come to the State Board of Health of cases of "refrigerator poisoning." Food easily becomes poisonous in unclean refrigerators. One rotten apple will soon bring its diseases to a whole barrel, and a very little spoiled meat, solid or other food, will speedily contaminate most every thing associated with it. When guests become nauseated at the table and are compelled to retire, the cause is most likely to be spoiled food. Every case of diarrhea is a case of food poisoning.

Refrigerators should be cleaned and scalded not less frequently than twice a week.

Guests at resort hotels usually want milk. Their doctors have told them it is the best food for building up their strength. Milk from dirty cows, collected in dirty stables or in barnyards deep in manure, is unfit to drink. Especially should the hands be clean which milk the cows or which handle the milk in any way. If a milkster is a typhoid or diarrhea carrier, and if he does not thoroughly wash his hands before milking, he is very apt to contaminate the milk. Many typhoid epidemics have been traced to milkers and are handlers in milk houses who were typhoid carriers. The very best advertisement a resort hotel can have is a clean, airy, wholesome dairy, with healthy clean cows and healthy clean people to do the milking and to handle the milk. If he has no dairy then let him take every care where he gets his milk.

Thorough screening is now demanded by the public. The resort keeper who has not screened his buildings is certain to fail. Desirable, "good pay" patrons can not be found for an unscreened resort hotel. Screen not only exclude the "filth-fly," but also prevent the entrance of mosquitoes, which not only prevent sleep but also cause inflammation and carry malaria germs. Malaria is always acquired from the stings of mosquitoes, but it is true that all mosquitoes are not charged with the germs. As those charged with the infection can not be discerned, it follows it is wise not to be bitten at all. While it is desirable that flies and mosquitoes be excluded it is more desirable that they be prevented.

Flies are born in manure and other filth. Don't have manure and don't have filth of any kind and the only flies about your place will come from the filth which your neighbors harbor. Then get after them and their flies will not bother you. A flyless summer resort would be a heavenly place.

Mosquitoes are born in stagnant water. Abolish all stagnant water conditions you possibly can. If you have rain water barrels keep them closely screened. Don't permit the existence of empty tin can, broken dishes or anything which may hold water. If you do, the mosquitoes will surely come. Nearby swamp places should have kerosene oil poured upon them. Pools for growing aquatic plants should be stocked with small fish, which will consume the mosquitoes' eggs. The successful resort keeper will wage ceaseless war against all insects, including flies and bedbugs. He will fight rats, too.

Local health officers are at the service of resort keepers. They will gladly give all the aid they can.

Some of the tourists from cities who so eagerly go forth upon their summer vacations, will have typhoid fever in the autumn. It has always been so in the past, but must not continue in the future. The germs must be planted in one before the disease can appear, and we now know that the summer resort is apt to acquire them. Persons seeking for a "nice place" to go generally ask as to the character of the food and beds, the social life, the music, the fishing or hunting, the temperature and the bathing.

A few now ask about the purity of the water supply, and a very few ask, "is the sewage disposed of in a sanitary manner?" Later everyone will ask these last two questions and will further ask, "Have they flies?" If the resort has bedbugs a great outcry will be made and departure will be prompt; yet bedbugs are not nearly as nasty or as dangerous to health as flies. From infancy all are taught to abhor bedbugs and speed the time when from infancy all are taught to abhor flies.

Summer tourists from cities which are well sewered and which have pure water supplies will cease having typhoid fever at home in the autumn when they cease patronizing resorts where flies abound, where the water is not pure and where the sewage and garbage is not disposed of in a sanitary way.

WILLING TO TAKE THE NOMINATION

Charles A. Carlisle of South Bend Announces His Candidacy For Governor on Republican Ticket.

IS PRACTICAL BUSINESS MAN

Pledges to Serve People Honestly and Industiously If Nominated and Elected.

Charles A. Carlisle, a South Bend business man in a letter to the people announces his candidacy for the Republican nomination for Governor. His letter follows:

To the People of Indiana: In response to the widely expressed opinion that the next Governor of the State of Indiana should be a practical business man, I hereby announce myself as a candidate for that office on the Republican ticket.

I make this announcement, however, subject to the approval of the wage-earner, the farmer and the business man of Indiana, whom I recognize as the real men of affairs who should decide a problem of this nature.

As a result of experience, study and association with highly developed and successful business and manufacturing associations, and through personal contact with men doing the world's work, I believe I am fairly conversant with the needs of each case or occupation, and their mutual relations, and I am confident if entrusted with the charge of this honored station that I can administer its duties acceptably to the whole people who have an eye single to the public welfare.

Without promising impossibilities or exaggerating benefits that would insure to the taxpayers of Indiana were I to be chosen Governor of the State, I pledge myself if elected, to serve you honestly, industriously and without discrimination; to apply to the business interests of the State, exactly the same business principles that have been applied in my business career, so that the dividends of peace and prosperity shall be the greatest possible.

I believe profoundly in rule by the people, and that the Governor should serve in the interests of the people, and not in the interests of special organizations, classes or creed. I will undertake to give the office the highest efficiency of service and consciousness of personal responsibility of which I am capable.

My life and record are an open book for your reading. Investigate and when you are satisfied as to my qualifications I shall be happy to hear from you directly that you are for me.

If you desire that I should engage in this campaign then I trust you will be willing to do your share, and the greatest service you can do the State, the party, yourself or me, is to attend personally the primaries, and assist in selecting delegates to the State Convention who will represent a majority vote of all the people.

My friends wish me to stand for this nomination, I am not only in their hands but in the hands of the great constituency of this magnificent commonwealth, which is entitled by all that is sacred to the grandest and most sacrificing executive service that man can give his State.

The tax payers have a right to demand accounting for every penny of the millions they so lavishly give to her, and they have the right to name the administrative head of so important an institution.

I am anxious to hear personally the views of these tax paying wage-earners, farmers and business men of the State.

I am for these men and the women and children represented by them, and this is their Problem far more than it is mine.

Respectfully submitted, CHARLES ARTHUR CARLISLE, South Bend, Indiana.

If the land of England and Wales were equally divided, there would be a little more than an acre for each person.

Lockwood Arraigns Lee.

George B. Lockwood, editor of the Marion Chronicle, a candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor, and a leader in the "dry" movement, accuses Edwin M. Lee and Horace G. Stilwell, leaders of the Bull Moose party in Indiana, of being allies of the Tom Taggart-Crawford Fairbanks Democratic machine. He says they are liaguocrats, and that they are playing to perpetuate brewery control in politics of the state. In a statement given out, Mr. Lockwood says:

"Practically no one in Grant county who has been affiliated with the Republican party, whether he has been for Roosevelt or Taft, favors the project of the Taggart wrecking crew to put state, district and county tickets in the field, but the Stilwell-Lee combination realizes that it is necessary to have a liaguocratic legislature as well as a liaguocratic Governor if the stranglehold of the liquor machine in this state is to be maintained, hence the order of these bosses for assistant Democratic tickets throughout the state.

"They do not even propose to let the delegates summoned to Indianapolis decide whether there shall be a state ticket. They order a state ticket in advance. They appoint the county chairmen, as they did the state committee. They take into their own hands the control of the movement to make it sure that it will serve the ends of its real master, the Indiana brewery machine.

"Let no Indiana Republican, whether for Roosevelt or Taft, be deceived. Lee and Stilwell are liaguocrats, not Republicans; they placed the beer keg above the eagle four years ago, and two years ago, and they are ready to parties, golf and tennis tournaments, yachting and coaching parties, verily the wine and froth of life, good in so far as it is wholesome recreation, futile in so far as it is the customary occupation of idle lives.

Wherefore, when the country correspondent, in her faded and pathetic black bombazine, hears her simple and sincere village items derided, let her reflect that human nature is just the same in Newport as in Lonesomehurst. It is of vastly more significance that Uncle Reuben has painted his barn than that Mrs. Vanderbilt has given a heart party! For the first was a creative act, the second was non-productive.

Bane of Thermometers.

"Thermometeritis" is the name that has been coined for a hot weather affliction that has again become prevalent in these days of high temperature and excessive humidity. It is believed by the investigator who evolved the name that people suffer more from heat nowadays than in the "good old times" of a couple of generations ago, and the cause has been traced to the thermometer, now an ornament of every street corner in the business districts of cities and towns and of a large number of private residences, city and rural. Knowledge of the exact height of the temperature on a particularly sultry day is believed to work effectively upon the imagination to persuade the observer that he is more uncomfortable than he really is.

Instances are cited by the corner of "thermometeritis" of persons who have become "prostrated" immediately after looking at thermometers, and while the average mortal may not have at hand any such conclusive facts as these, nearly everyone can furnish supplementary evidence from his own experience. For example, a man will go out some afternoon and play golf or tennis for two or three hours in the sun and feel little inconvenience mixed with his full measure of enjoyment. Upon his return home he will have next thing to a stroke of heart failure upon learning what the temperature was in the middle of the afternoon and will wonder how he ever escaped being sun struck. Again, "I knew it was warm, but I had no idea the temperature was that high," is an expression that has been heard by everybody, and the chances are that five minutes later the person who uttered it is feeling 50 per cent. warmer than he was before he became acquainted with the state of the thermometer.

Once a person is persuaded in his own imagination that he is uncomfortable he will be uncomfortable, and you don't have to go as far as Christian Science to establish the fact. Now, suppose you know from past experience that you suffer fearfully on a day when the temperature is 90. Well, maybe there will come along a day when you are in exceptional physical condition and when the humidity of the atmosphere is nearly ideal. Suddenly you will be confronted by a thermometer which notifies you the temperature is 95. Five degrees hotter than on the day you suffered so much! The chances are, unless you are abnormally philosophical, that the fact will begin working on your imagination, and before you know it you will be the suffering victim of "thermometeritis."

As only people who have no money are allowed to contribute to campaign funds nowadays, the patriotic fervor of the politician is a little cool this year.

While Elihu Root was President Roosevelt's secretary of state he was "the greatest man that had appeared in the public life of this generation in this or any other country's." Now he is "Ryan's attorney." There is no evidence that Mr. Root has formed any new legal connections since Colnel Roosevelt boosted him as the biggest and best man in the world. The only difference is that now he is not for the colonel, and this, of course, is what determines the honesty of a man in political life.

The Esperantists are having a convention in Boston, but it is not much more difficult to understand them than the Boston school marm.

With fiendish joy the Small Boy always watches the garden drying up, which means fewer potatoes for him to dig by and by.

Association Proposes to Build Memorial to McKinley

The National McKinley Birthplace Memorial Association, incorporated by act of Congress, and approved by the President March 4, 1911, propose to build a monument and Memorial Building to "William McKinley" and "The McKinley Period" at Niles, Ohio, the birthplace of McKinley.

The incorporators named in the act and who serve as trustees afford ample guarantee of responsibility and of ability to carry out the plan successfully. J. G. Butler, Jr., of Youngstown, Ohio, President; John G. Milburn of Buffalo and New York, at whose residence McKinley died, Vice-president; J. G. Schmidlapp of Cincinnati, Ohio, treasurer; W. D. Thomas, of Niles, Ohio, secretary; Hon. Myron T. Herick, now Ambassador to France, and formerly Governor of Ohio, is Chairman of the Executive Committee. Col. Charles Arthur Carlisle, of the Studebaker Corporation of South Bend, Indiana, is Vice-president for the State of Indiana, and is charged with the responsibility of Indiana's representation. Mr. Charles E. Coffin, president of the Central Trust Company, Indianapolis, Indiana is selected as treasurer for the Indiana representation.

Peculiarly fitting is it that the city of Niles, Ohio, should be selected for the site of the McKinley Memorial. Here will be collected and preserved in a fire proof building of enduring marble and granite not only the family heirlooms, documents, pictures, papers, etc., of William McKinley and the McKinley family, but interesting and valuable papers and products of the McKinley period, including memorial tablets, busts and portraits of prominent men identified with the McKinley period and his career. Here also in a fitting manner will be represented the industrial, social and economic developments under the McKinley policy. It is proposed to have an auditorium for public purposes, irrespective of creed or politics. At the entrance there will be a bust or full-sized statue of McKinley.

The McKinley Birthplace Memorial will mark the birthplace of a statesman who holds a peculiarly intimate place in the hearts of his fellow countrymen; a place won by his singularly winning personality, his sterling integrity, his purity of motive, his unblemished life, and more than all, by his unflinching and wholehearted devotion to his invalid wife.

The National McKinley Birthplace Memorial Association presents this cause to you, believing that every American, every lover of the good and true in humanity, every admirer of the man McKinley and every recipient of the benefactions that have followed the adoption of the wise and benevolent policies of the statesman McKinley, will feel that he owes it to himself and his country to contribute to the establishment of the proposed memorial.

Indiana is given the opportunity of representing as one of the foundation stone builders and every man, woman and child in the state is earnestly invited to contribute and participate.

HOW many of your hard earned dollars go up in ice each year? A great many more than you would like to have, undoubtedly. The "main question" with most of us is how we can best reduce this number of dollars to a minimum. The solution of the problem lies with the refrigerator.

Q The price you pay to-day for a refrigerator is but a small part of the price you will pay in the life time of the refrigerator for ice.

Q It is therefore, economy to buy the best refrigerator—the refrigerator, which because of its scientific construction and superior insulation, will use the least ice and will stand the hardest usage for the greatest number of years.

Let Us Demonstrate the New Iceless Refrigerator which maintains a temperature of 45° without the use of ice.

B. R. Inman is Still up in the Air

Over The Political Situation.

B. R. Inman, editor of the Middletown News and an alternate to the recent Republican national convention spent the day in the city, says the Newcastle Courier. Mr. Inman made a business trip here and as-tounded County Clerk Thornburg by asking payment on a legal account two years old.

Mr. Inman considers himself in a rather unfortunate situation from a political standpoint. He earnestly and honestly advocated the nomination of Col. Roosevelt for president and went to the Chicago convention and assisted materially in the Roosevelt organization. He was also a Roosevelt factor in the Sixth district convention. However, since the re-nomination of President Taft Inman has been made the target of numerous solicitations from both the regular Republican organization and the progressive new party movement.

While here Mr. Inman refused to commit himself as to his political affiliations during the coming campaign. He talked in a confidential manner to a large extent and to a degree made his position clear.

"You can say," said Mr. Inman to a representative of The Courier, "that I do not indorse the attitude taken by certain politicians, in which the leaders of the opposition are called liars, thieves, brigands and other similar names. In my mind that is poor politics and is unbecoming for."

"I am not ready to state my attitude and my position in this political squabble. However, it will be difficult for me to break away from the Republican party, whose principles I have long advocated, admired and subscribed to."

APPEALS TO A POPULAR VEIN

Bertha Wooden Orchestra Will be the First Musical Organization at Chautauqua This Year.

GIVES CONCERT MONDAY NIGHT

Most Artistic Program Ever Produced For Assembly Being Issued From Presses.

The programs for the Rush County Chautauqua which will be held in the Coliseum August fourth to eleventh, are being issued from the presses. They are the most artistic folders that the association has yet produced. They will be distributed in a few days.

A glance at the program this year will suffice to prove to chautauqua goers that this year's program gives promise of excelling any one of the former eight at the local assembly. Special attention has been paid this year by the talent committee to the musical organizations.

Music touches a popular vein, and especially does it as rendered by the Bertha Wooden Orchestra, which will be here at the chautauqua for a two days' engagement. This organization comes the first day of the chautauqua. It will give the preludes on the first two days and will render a complete concert Monday evening.

The orchestra this season is under the management of Forney W. Clement, and the soloist with the orchestra is Miss Derr Lewis, a soprano of note. The program will be a semi-popular one, with many classic numbers, as well as those of lighter vein. The orchestra contains several soloists of note and these will also appear upon the program.

The great miracle in the story of the violin is that it is practically the same instrument that it was over 300 years ago when Asparo da Salo made the first one. The finish and workmanship has improved but the principle is the same. Miss Wooden, of the Bertha Wooden Orchestra, is the owner of a very rare old violin which one of the largest music houses in the middle west recently offered her $1,000 for. In as much as the value of any instrument is what it can be sold for it can readily be seen the above violin must be one of exceptional value.

During the past few years the Bertha Wooden Orchestra has won many favorable press comments, and from them the following ones are selected: Elkhart (Indiana) Truth: The Bertha Wooden Orchestra pleased their audience. The programs discoursed by these clever musicians were of a high order of excellence.

Battle Creek (Michigan) Moon: Music lovers were afforded a rare treat in the Bertha Wooden Orchestra. The audience was delighted. Each number was of excellent quality. Attica (Indiana) Ledger: They are all musicians. They know good music and they know how to play it.

Lansing (Michigan) Republican: The concert was artistic and entertaining.

Hillsdale (Michigan) Standard: The Bertha Wooden Orchestra created a most favorable impression.

This was the second question Bery had dreaded. Now suddenly she felt her throat contract and her lips quiver. Her usually iron nerve had been shaken by her passion of the night before and the shock of the morning. The unwelcome sensations of gloom and apprehension closed in on her again, and this time made her feel weak and fearful.

"I didn't want to. I hate moving around," she said, pushing her chair back from the table. Her voice was a little hoarse, and suddenly feeling the sting of tears under her eyelids she raised her hands to her hat and began to fumble with her veil. "Why should I leave my comfortable flat to go trailing round in a lot of half-built hotels? That sort of thing doesn't appeal to me at all. I like my own cook, and my own bed, and my own bath-tub. I'm more of an old maid than Hannah. Well, so long, people. I must be traveling."

She laid her napkin on the table and jumped up with an assumption of brisk liveliness. She paid no attention to the expostulations of her relatives, but going to the glass arranged her hat and put on her gloves. When she turned back to the table she had regained possession of herself. Her veil was down and through it her cheeks looked unusually flushed, and her dark eyes, with their slanting outer corners, brighter and harder than ever. She hurried through her good-bys on the plea that she had shopping to do, and almost ran out of the house, leaving a trail of perfume and high, artificial laughter behind her.

For the next week she waited for news from Dominick and none came. It was a trying seven days. Added to her embarrassment of mind, the loneliness of the flat was almost un-

THE FIRST GRAY HAIR SIGN OF AGE

Easy Way to Preserve Natural Color of the Hair and Make It Grow.

A harmless remedy, made from common garden sage, quickly restores gray hair to natural color. The care of the hair, to prevent it from losing its color and lustre, is just as important as to care for teeth to keep them from discoloring. Why spend money for cosmetics and creams to improve the complexion, and yet neglect your hair, when gray hair is even more conspicuous and suggestive of age than wrinkles or a poor complexion? Of the two, it is easier to preserve the natural color and beauty of the hair than it is to have a good complexion.

All that is necessary is the occasional use of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, a preparation of common garden Sage and Sulphur, combined with other valuable remedies for dry, harsh, faded hair, dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair. After a few applications of this simple, harmless remedy, your hair will gradually be restored to its natural color, in a short time the dandruff will be removed, and your hair will no longer come out but will start to grow as Nature intended it should.

Don't neglect your hair, for it goes further than anything else to make or mar your good looks. You can buy this remedy at any drug store for fifty cents a bottle, and your druggist will give you money back if you are not satisfied after using. Purchase a bottle today. You will never regret it when you realize the difference it will make in your appearance.

NO REASON FOR IT

When Rushville Citizens Show the Way.

There can be no just reason why any reader of this will continue to suffer the tortures of an aching back, the annoyance of urinary disorders, the dangers of serious kidney ills when relief is so near at hand and the most positive proof given that these ills can be cured. Read what a Rushville citizen says:

Mrs. W. A. Wylie, 824 North Arthur street, Rushville, Ind., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have been used in our family and we have found them to be a splendid remedy for kidney complaint. A member of our family suffered from attacks of backache for several years, the trouble being caused by disordered kidneys. Doan's Kidney Pills were brought to our attention and thinking they might prove of benefit, we procured a supply at F. B. Johnson & Co.'s Drug Store. The use of two boxes entirely relieved the backache and strengthened the kidneys. I publicly recommended Doan's Kidney Pills at that time and I still take pleasure in saying a good word for them."

endurable. There was no one to speak to, no one to share her anxieties. Her position was unusually friendless. When her marriage had lifted her from the ranks of working women she had shown so cold a face to her old companions that they had dropped away from her, realizing that she wished to cut all ties with the world of her humble beginnings. New friends had been hard to make. The wives of some of the bank officials, and odd, aspiring applicants for such honors as would accrue from even this remote connection with the august name of Ryan, were all she had found where-with to make a circle and a visiting list.

But she was intimate with none of them and was now too worried to seek the society of mere acquaintances. She ate her solitary meals in oppressive silence, feeling the Chinaman's eyes fixed upon her in ironic disbelief of the story she had told him to account for Dominick's absence. Eat as slowly as she would, her dinner could not be made to occupy more than twenty minutes, and after that there was the long evening, the interminable evening, to be passed. She was a great reader of newspapers, and when she returned from her afternoon shopping she brought a bundle of evening papers home in her hand. She would read these slowly, at first the important items, then go over them for matters of less moment, and finally scan the advertisements.

At the end of the week she felt that she must find out something, and went to the bank. It was her intention to cash a small check and over this transaction see if the paying teller would vouchsafe any information about Dominick. She pushed the check through the opening and, as the man counted out the money, said glly:

"Do you hear anything of my wandering husband?"

The teller pushed the little pile of silver and gold through the window toward her and leaning forward, said, with the air of one who intends to have a leisurely moment of talk:

"No, we haven't. Isn't it our place to come to you for that? We were wondering where he'd gone at such a season."

Bery's delicately-gloved fingers made sudden haste to gather up the coins. "Oh, he's just loafing about," she said as easily as was consistent with the disappointment and alarm that gripped her. "He's just wandering round from place to place. He was getting insomnia and wanted a change of scene."

She snapped the clasp of her purse before the man could ask her further questions, nodded her good-bys, and turned from the window. Her face changed as she emerged on the wide, stone steps that led to the street. It was pinched and pale, two lines drawn between the eyebrows. She descended the steps slowly, the flood of magnificent sunshine having no warming influence upon the chill that had seized upon her. Many of the passing throng of men looked at her—a pretty woman in her modishly-made dress of tan-colored cloth and her close-fitting brown turban with a bunch of white paradise feathers at one side. Under her dotted veil her carefully made-up complexion looked naturally clear and rosy, and her eyes, accentuated by a dark line beneath them, were in attractive contrast to her reddened hair. But she was not thinking of herself or the admiration she evoked, a subject which was generally of overpowering interest. Matters of more poignant moment had crowded all else from her mind.

The next week began and advanced and still no news from Dominick. He had been gone fourteen days, when one evening in her perusal of the paper she saw his name. Her trembling hands pressed the sheet down on the table, and her eyes devoured the printed lines. It was one of the many short despatches that had come from the foot-hill mining towns on the recent storms in the Sierra. It was headed Rocky Bar and contained a description of the situation at Antelope and the snow-bound colony there. Its chief item of information was that Bill Cannon and his daughter were among the prisoners at Perley's Hotel. A mention was made, only a line or two, of Dominick's walk from Rocky Bar, but it was treated lightly and gave no idea of the real seriousness of that almost fatal excursion.

Bery read the two short paragraphs many times, and her spirits went up like the needle of a thermometer when the quicksilver is grasped in a warm hand. Her relief was intense, careful and relaxing, as the sudden cessation of a pain. Not only was Dominick at last found, but he was found in a place as far removed from his own family and its influences as he was from her. And best of all he was shut up, incarcerated, with Bill Cannon, the Bonanza King. What might not come of it? Bery was not glad of the quarrel, but it seemed a wonderful piece of luck that that unpleasant episode should have sent him into the very arms of the man that she had always wanted him to cultivate and who was the best person in the world for him to impress favorably. If Bill Cannon, who had been a friend of his father's, took a fancy to Dominick, there was no knowing what might happen. In a sudden reaction of relief and hope Bery saw them almost adopted children of the Bonanza King, flouting the Ryans in the pride of their new-found honors.

It made her feel lenient to Dominick, whose indifference and neglect had put her to the torments of the last fortnight. After all, he could not have let her know his whereabouts. The wires were just up, and the rural mail-carrier had not yet been able to effect an entrance into the snow-bound town. Why Dominick had chosen to go in this direction and had attempted an impossible walk in a heavy snow-storm Bery did not know, nor just now care much. A sensation as near remorse and tenderness as she could feel possessed her. Under its softening influence—spurred to generosity and magnanimity by the lifting of the weight of anxiety—she decided that she would write to him. She would write him a letter which would smooth out the difficulties between them and bring him home ready to forgive and be once more his old self, kind, quiet, and indulgent, as he had been in the first year of their marriage.

Then and there, without further waiting, she wrote the letter. It ran as follows:

"My Dear Husband:—I have only just seen in the paper where you are, and oh, the relief! For two weeks now I have been half crazy, wondering about you, waiting to hear from you. And nothing ever came. Dominick, dear, if you had seen me sitting here alone in the den every evening, thinking and waiting, looking at the clock and listening all the time, even when I was trying to read—listening for your footsteps which never came—you would have felt very sorry for me; even you, who were so angry that you left me without a word. It's just been hell this last two weeks. You may not think by the way I acted that I would have cared, but I did, I do. If I didn't love you would I mind how your people treated me? That's what makes it so hard, because I love you and want you to be happy with me, and it's dreadful for me to see them always getting in between us, till sometimes lately I have felt they were going to separate us altogether.

"Oh, my dear husband, don't let that happen! Don't let them drive me away from you! If I have been bad-humored and unreasonable, I have had to bear a lot. I am sorry for the past. I am sorry for what I said to you that night, and for turning on the gas and

HAY FEVER ATTACKS QUICKLY ENDED

Just Try Ely's Cream Balm, A Cleansing, Healing Antiseptic Cream.

Are you half sick for two or three months every summer with Hay Fever—violent sneezing spells, running at the nose, intense itching in the corners of the eyes, pain and soreness in the back of the throat, at nights a stuffed-up feeling in the head and an asthmatic wheezing in the throat and chest? If so, you can get almost instant relief by simply using a cleansing, healing antiseptic Cream called Ely's Cream Balm.

Hay Fever is due to an extremely sensitive condition of the membrane lining the nose and throat. Dust, smoke and certain odors irritate this delicate inside skin, it becomes inflamed, causes a watery discharge from the nose and violent spasms of sneezing.

Ely's Cream Balm will relieve all these distressing symptoms in five minutes' time. It opens up the air passages, soothes, heals and strengthens the weakened, inflamed membranes, restores them to healthy, normal condition, so that you are not subject to Hay Fever attacks.

scratching the bed. "I am ready to acknowledge that I was wrong, and was mean and hateful. And now you ought to be ready to forgive me and forget it all. Come back to me. Please come back. Don't be angry with me. I am your wife. You chose me of your own free will. That I loved you so that I forgot honor and public opinion and had no will but yours, you know better than any one else in the world. It isn't every man, Dominick, that gets that kind of love. I gave it then and I've never stopped giving it, though I've often been so put upon and enraged that I've said things I didn't mean and done things I've been ready to kill myself for. Here I am now, waiting for you, longing for you. Come back to me.

"Your loving wife, BERYN."

She read the letter over several times and it pleased her greatly. So anxious was she to have it go as soon as possible that, though it was past ten, she took it out herself and posted it in the letter-box at the corner.

CHAPTER VII.

Snow-Bound.

While the world went about its affairs, attended to its business, read its papers, sent its telegrams and wrote its letters, the little group at Antelope was as completely cut off from it as though marooned on a strip of sand in an unknown sea. A second storm had followed the original one, and the end of the first week saw them snowed in deeper than ever, Antelope a trickle of roofs and smokestacks, in a white, crystal-clear wilderness, solemn in its stillness and loneliness as the primeval world.

The wires were down; the letter-carrier could not break his way in to them. They heard no news and received no mail. Confined in a group of rude buildings, crouched in a hollow of the Sierra's flank, they felt for the first time what it was to be outside that circle of busy activity in which their lives had heretofore passed. They were face to face with the nature they thought they had conquered and which now in its quiet grandeur awed them with a sense of their own small helplessness. Pressed upon by that enormous silent indifference, they drew nearer together, each individual unit gaining in importance from the contrasting immensity without, each character unconsciously declaring itself, emerging from acquired reticences and becoming bolder and more open.

They accepted their captivity in a spirit of gay good humor. The only two members of the party to whom it seemed irksome were Bill Cannon and the actor, both girding against a confinement which kept them from their several spheres of action. The others abandoned themselves to a childish, almost fantastic enjoyment of a situation unique in their experience. It was soon to end, it would never be repeated. It was an adventure charged with romance, accidental, unsought, as all true adventures are. The world was forgotten for these few days of imprisonment against the mountain's mighty heart. It did not exist for them. All that was real was their own little party, the white-washed passages and walls of Perley's, the dining-room with its board floor and homely fare, and the parlor at night with a semicircle of faces round the blazing logs.

On the afternoon of the sixth day Dominick made his first appearance down stairs. He achieved the descent with slow painfulness, hobbling between Perley and the doctor. The former's bathrobe had been cast aside for a dignified dark-brown dressing-gown, contributed to his wardrobe by Cannon, and which, cut to fit the burly proportions of the Bonanza King, hung around the long, lank form of the young man in enveloping folds.

The parlor was empty, save for Miss Cannon sitting before the fire. Dominick had ceased to feel bashfulness and constraint in the presence of this girl, who had been pushed—against his will if not against her own—into the position of his head attendant. The afternoon when they had sat together in his room seemed to have brushed away all his shyness and self-consciousness. He thought now that it would be difficult to retain either in intercourse with a being who was so candid, so spontaneous, so freshly natural. He found himself treating her as if she were a young boy with whom he had been placed on a sudden footing of careless, cheery intimacy. But her outward seeming—what she presented to the eye—was not in the least boyish. Her pale, opaque blondness, her fine, rich outlines, her softness of mind, were things as completely and gracefully feminine as the most epicurean admirer of women could have wished.

Now, at the sight of her bending over the fire, he experienced a sensation of pleasure which vaguely surprised him. He was hardly conscious that all the time he had been dressing and while he came down stairs he had been hoping that she would be there. He sent a quick glance ahead of him, saw her, and looked away. The pain of his feet was violent, and without again regarding her he knew that while he was gaining his chair and his attendants were settling him, she had not turned from her contemplation of the fire. He already knew her well enough to have a comfortable assurance of her invariable quick tact. It was not till the two men were leaving the room that she turned to him and said, as if resuming an interrupted conversation:

"Well, how do you like the parlor? Speak nicely of it for I feel as if it belonged to me."

"It's a first-rate parlor," he answered, looking about him. "Never saw a better one. Who's the gentleman with the wreath of wax flowers round his head?"

"That's Jim Granger. He comes from here, you know; and you mustn't laugh at those flowers, they came off his coffin."

"My father knew him," said the young man indifferently. "There were lots of queer stories about Jim Granger. He killed a man once up at Bodie. You've a fine fire here, haven't you?"

"Fine. It's never allowed to go out. What do you think I intend to do this afternoon? I've a plan for amusing and instructing you."

"What is it?" he said somewhat uneasily. "I don't feel in the least as if I wanted to be instructed."

She rose and moved to the center-table which was covered with an irregular scattering of books.

"Before you came down I was looking over these books. There are lots of them. Mrs. Perley says they've been accumulating for years. Mining men have left them and some of them have the names of people I know written in them. I thought perhaps you might like to read some of them."

Dominick sent a lazily disparaging glance over the books. He was not much of a reader at the best of times.

"What are they," he said, "novels?"

"Mostly." She sat down by the table and took up the volume nearest to her. "Here's 'Tale of Two Cities.' That's a fine one."

"I've read it. Yes, it's splendid. It's all about the French Revolution. The hero's like a real person and heroes in books hardly ever are, only I'd have liked him better if he'd stopped drinking and married his girl."

"I thought perhaps you might like me to read to you," she said, turning a tentative glance on him. "That's how I was going to amuse and instruct you."

"I'm sure it would be much more amusing and probably just as instructive if you talked to me."

"You've got to stay down here two hours. How could I talk and be amusing and instructive for two hours? You'd probably have a relapse and I'm quite sure the doctor'd find me in a dead faint on the hearth when he came in."

"All right. Let's try the books. Don't let's risk relapses and dead faints."

"Very well, then, that's understood. We'll go through the library now. I'll read the titles and you say if you like any of them."

"Suppose I don't?"

"You'll surely have a preference."

"All right. I'll try to. Go on."

"Here's 'Touli Play,' by Charles Reade. It seems to have been a good deal read. Some of the paragraphs are marked with a pencil."

"I think I've read it, but I'm not sure. It sounds like a murder story. No, let's pass on that."

"Well, here's 'Mrs. Skaggs' Husbands,' by Bret Harte. Does that sound as if you'd like it?"

"Husbands! No. We don't want to read about a woman who has husbands. Pass on that, too."

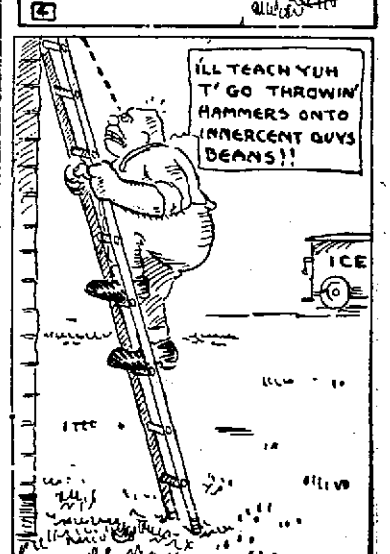

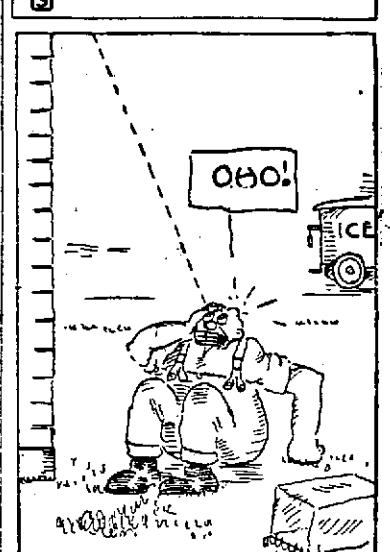

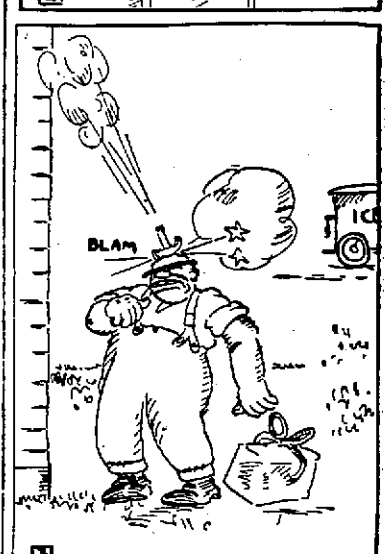

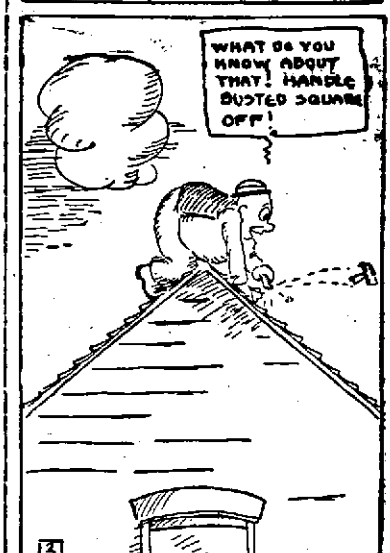

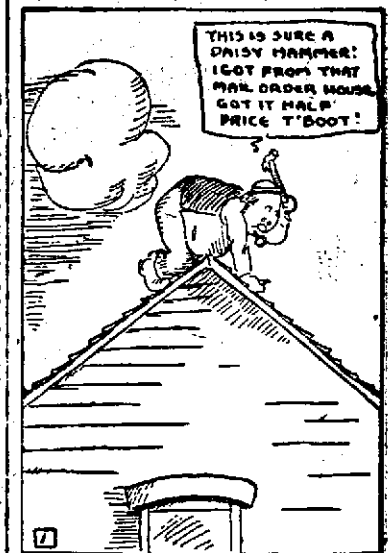

"The next is very nicely bound and looks quite fresh and new, as if no-body had read it much. It's called 'The Amazing Marriage.'"

"Oh, pass on that! I had it once and stuck in the third chapter. The last time I went East somebody gave it to me to read on the train. I read three chapters and I was more amazed than anybody in sight. The porter was a fresh coon and I gave it to him as my revenge. I'll bet it amazed him."

"You don't seem to have anything in the nature of a preference, so far. I wonder how this will suit you. 'Notre Dame de Paris,' by Victor Hugo."

JUNGLE CLAIMS DARING AVIATOR

Hubert Latham Killed By Wild Buffalo In Africa.

A PIONEER OF THE AIR LANES

Though Under Thirty Years of Age, Latham Had Faced Death Many Times. For the Pure Sport of the Thing, His Brilliant Air Work Having Thrilled Two Continents and Brought Him Much Fame.

Paris, July 17.—During a hunt in the French Sudan territory, Hubert Latham, the famous Anglo-French aviator, and one of the pioneers of heavier-than-air aviation, was killed by a wild buffalo.

The governor general of French equatorial Africa, Martial Henri Merlin, in telegraphing the news to the minister of the colonies, said Latham was out with a number of natives on the Chari river near the Bahr Es Salamat in the direction of Lake Chad, when he shot and wounded a buffalo, which immediately charged him and gored and trampled him to death.

Hubert Latham, who was the first aviator to make any notable flights in a monoplane, was also renowned as a daring motor boat man. He was a splendid shot, and in 1905 went elephant hunting in the Sudan. In 1906 he made a trip from Khartum to Abyssinia, then passed through British East Africa and visited Indian and French Indo-China.

On his last and fatal hunting trip he left Bordeaux on Dec. 29 last year, for the Congo, taking with him a monoplane and a big game outfit. He was twenty-nine years old. He was born in Paris in 1883 of English parents.

Latham arrived in New York from Europe with the French team in October, 1910, to take part in the aviation meet at Belmont park, where he was placed fourth in the international aviation race. He then made a tour of the country, engaging in many brilliant exhibition flights, during which several times he narrowly escaped death.

PERU ACTIVE

Government Proceeding in Matter of Rubber District Horror.

London, July 17.—A new batch of documents as to the Peruvian scandal in the Putumayo district, has been made public. These documents include an appeal for funds for the Putumayo mission, explaining the necessity of the mission being Roman Catholic and pointing out that according to the Peruvian constitution works of this kind would only be permitted if entrusted to the Roman Catholic church. The appeal asks for $75,000 to insure the definite establishment of a Christian mission. It is signed among others by the Dukes of Hamilton and Norfolk.

The Peruvian government has issued the following formal statement: "These crimes were committed prior to 1907 and could not be promptly suppressed, as they took place in wild forest regions far remote from all inhabited centers. The Peruvian government has taken and will continue to take, all necessary steps to punish the guilty parties and to prevent all possibility of a repetition of such outrages."

The Peruvian Amazon company has been in voluntary liquidation for some months.

Wants to Be Rebel Chief.

El Paso, July 17.—Antonio Rojas, rebel general, wants to be rebel chief. He is tired of having his operations curtailed. After his band had looted the Banco de Minero at Juarez, General Orozco put him in prison. He was released after being sentenced to five years on promise of good behavior and sent south this week by Orozco to go to Sonora to fight. He defied instructions and went to Pearson and Madero, in Chihuahua, where he looted the Pearson plants and then decided to return and depose Orozco, as he has a thousand rebels.

Hilles's Successor Appointed.

Washington, July 17.—Carmi Thompson of Ohio will succeed Charles D. Hilles as secretary to the president. Mr. Thompson is now second assistant secretary of the interior. He was at one time speaker of the Ohio assembly and later served a term in the office of secretary of state. He is forty-five years old.

BIG ROADS RESIST ENGINEERS' CLAIMS

Wage Arbitrators Hearing From the Moguls.

New York, July 17.—President A. B. Worthington of the Chicago & Alton told the commission of arbitrators who are sitting at Manhattan Beach, how it undoubtedly would force many of the weaker roads to the wall if the wage demands of the locomotive engineers were granted. The great burden of the $7,000,000 increase would fall upon the smaller lines, he explained, and not upon the richer ones, who are much better able to afford it. The strongest argument of the railroads seem not to be levelled at the increase as much as against the standardization of the lines, which is one of the things that the engineers are seeking. Mr. Worthington frankly admitted that if the commission granted the increase to the engineers the roads would be forced without a fight to make similar concessions to all their other employees, and he estimated that this would mean $63,000,000 annually.

Before Killing Himself Lafayette Dentist Wrote Message to Wife.

Lafayette, Ind., July 17.—Dr. Floyd E. Cording, aged twenty-eight, a young dentist of Lafayette, was found dead in a pasture in the south end of the city. He was addicted to the use of cocaine and beside his body was a bottle that had contained cocaine. Under the bottle was a note addressed to his wife, in which he said: "As I never have been true to you, I am now going to do what I have threatened. I hate to do this, but this world is large, and I will give you a chance to better yourself. As everyone knows, I am no good, so here goes, and I hope you much joy and happiness."

Dr. Cording was a member of one of the city's most prominent families, and stood high in society until his better nature had become perverted by the drug habit.

Our Foreign Trade's Fine Growth.

Washington, July 17.—The foreign commerce of the United States established a new high record in both imports and exports in the fiscal year 1912. The figures of the year's total trade, just completed by the bureau of statistics of the department of commerce and labor, show that the imports were $1,693,426,174 and the exports $2,204,222,068 in value. The imports exceeded by about $100,000,000 the former high record, that of 1910.

The Growth of the Kingdom. Mark iv:26-32; Matt. xiii:33.

Golden Text—Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done in earth as in heaven. Matt. vi:10.

(1.) Verse 26—What does "the kingdom of God" here stand for?
(2.) What seed is here referred to and what is the ground in which it is sown?

(3.) Whom does the "Man" represent which sows the seed and how is the seed sown?

(4.) Verse 27—After a minister or teacher or any other Christian has sown the seed of the gospel ought he to be restless or anxious concerning its growth? Give your reasons.

(5.) What is the proof that the seed of the gospel will when sown always bring forth its proper fruit?

(6.) Verse 28—The earth produces a great variety of things by self propagation, without human instrumental.

(7.) When we are in trouble what do we need to do to get adequate help from God?

(8.) Verses 25-28—What is the best thing for a woman who is afflicted with a chronic disease to do?

(9.) Did this woman have true faith or was her faith mixed with superstition? Give your reasons.

(10.) Many truly good people who trust in God are also full of superstition. What effect does this weakness have upon God's dealings with them?

(11.) May sick people today have the same simple faith for bodily healing that this woman had and be healed? Give your reason.

(12.) Verses 29-34—Was it the mere touch of Jesus' garment that healed her or conscious effort on the part of Jesus? Why?

(13.) Was there, or not, and why, any more virtue in Jesus' garment in itself than in that of any other man?

(14.) How did Jesus know, with so many people jostling him, of the particular touch of this woman?

(15.) What is the ground for the belief that God is aware of every thought, word and act of every individual?

(16.) When we open up our hearts to God and make him our confidential friend what are always the results?

(17.) Verses 35-36—When matters are as black as night and our troubles seem beyond remedy why is it still safe to be of good courage and to have faith?

(18.) Verse 37—Why is it that there are only certain persons we can work with effectually, while others, equally good people, are a hindrance to us?

(19.) Verses 38-43—What can you say for or against profuse weeping and elaborate mourning emblems at the funerals of Christians?

HELPFUL HINTS.

To make ham tender, parboil and put to cook in a fireless cooker. Before serving, fry quickly until a golden brown. It will be tender, moist and altogether nice.

If a little vinegar is added to boiling fish it will keep it from falling to pieces. This will serve for cooking eggs in water, too.

A nice idea to follow, if boards are plenty, is to keep one especially for use in chopping or shredding onions. Burn a round letter O in the back and it will never be used for any other material.

An unusual combination for salad, but a good one, is sour pickles, peanuts and peas served with any desired salad dressing on lettuce, using a little onion juice in the dressing.

Another salad combination which is very delicious and most attractive in appearance is pears, almonds and candied cherries for garnish, using the French dressing.

Salad Dressing for Lettuce Sandwiches.—One egg yolk beaten light, add four tablespoonfuls of melted butter, half teaspoonful of salt and a tablespoonful of vinegar, red pepper to taste; stir without cooking. Spread on bread without butter. Place a piece of lettuce or a slice of cucumber on each for a sandwich filling.

Add a few almonds to a potato salad to add to its food value and make it more palatable.

In round numbers the system of the New York Telephone company consists of 526 central offices, 383,000 subscriber lines, 795,000 subscriber stations, 17,050 private branch exchange switchboards, and 35,900 local and toll trunk lines connecting the various central offices.

During the year 1911 we handled approximately 985,000,000 originating calls, of which about 470,000,000 were trunked to a second central office, thus involving the employment of a second operator in handling these calls. These figures represent an increase of approximately 9½ per cent. over the originating traffic handled in 1910.—Telephone Review.

HAS SYSTEM OF ROAD MARKING

Hoosier Motor Club Paints White Bands on Poles to Inform Motorists of Way.

SEVERAL ROADS COMPLETED

Asks Aid of Local Auto Enthusiasts in Perfecting Plan to Help Tourists.

Fred L. Willis of Indianapolis, chairman of the runs and tour committee of the Hoosier Motor Club has informed local automobile enthusiasts that the organization is working for the betterment of conditions for auto tourists over the Hoosier domain, and that one of the plans of the club is to mark roads so that there is no danger of any touring party losing its way. The letter of Mr. Willis follows:

The Hoosier Motor Club of this city have undertaken an exhaustive system of road marking for the benefit of motorists who tour the State of Indiana. This is not only of benefit to the automobile owners of your own city, or of Indianapolis, or of the State of Indiana—but those of foreign States who tour Indiana, and is one of the best advertisements for the State of Indiana that could be inaugurated.

The Hoosier Motor Club has started to paint a white band on telephone poles on thoroughfares which lead across the State and pass through Indianapolis. Every pole is marked at the turns and at dangerous crossings there are double markings, and on roads where there are no turns the poles are marked two or three to the mile.

The Hoosier Motor club is doing this work thus far at their own expense, but it is desirous that cities throughout the State follow this system and take it into adjoining towns. We have marked the roads from Indianapolis to Crawfordsville, Greensburg, Shelbyville and Logansport, and will rapidly follow this up on other roads out of the city.

And if the motorists in your city would carry this on to the next prominent point it would mark a splendid highway for all tourists and all that would be necessary for you to do would be to advise those wishing to know the road to follow the white banded poles to the desired point. Where there is a fork in the road and we paint both roads we have sign board, advising of direction.

SAY POTATOES WILL ROT IN THE GROUND

Farmers Fear Continued Wet Weather Will be Harmful to Crop Which Promised Much.

DANGER OF BEING SHORTENED

The promise of a great potato crop this year is in danger of being unfulfilled, according to reports to the effect that potatoes have begun to rot in the ground, and small ones to sprout, instead of growing. The long continued extremely wet weather is held to be the cause of the decay of the potatoes which have had rust spots on them for some time. When the hot weather began a few days ago, it was hoped that the decay would be checked, but since the last big rains Monday afternoon and night, and the drop of about thirty degrees in temperature, it is feared by some that the potatoes will continue to decay until the supply will be very materially shortened from what it promised a few weeks ago. Then the word went out that the crop was the largest and best yield and quality that we have had in many years, and visions of 50 cent spuds floated before the eyes of the consumers, but if the present conditions continue, it is said the supply will be so shortened that the price will remain much higher than was expected.

Collier defaulted by not appearing in court, and the divorce was granted. The same procedure was taken in suit for quiet title.

It was on October twelfth, 1898, that a divorce decree was granted to Mary C. Collier from her husband, John Collier by Judge Will M. Sparks of this city in the Rush circuit court. The court records show that the defendant's name was called out in court, that he did not respond, and that the divorce was granted to Mrs. Collier through the default of her husband.

At this time Mr. Collier had been missing for about two years and it was generally believed that he was dead. The record of the granting of the decree does not state the charge Mrs. Collier preferred in the complaint for divorce. It is presumed it was abandonment or desertion. Mrs. Collier's maiden name, Mary C. Carson, was not restored. She was granted the custody of her four children, Florence, who is now Mrs. William L. Downey, of Shelbyville; Omer M., Mary J., who is now Mrs. William O'Neil and Henry N., who lives with his mother.

The absence of Mr. Collier was first brought to light in the divorce proceedings, but ten years later the fact was recalled again when Mrs. Collier filed suit in the circuit court against her missing husband, and her son, Henry N. Collier, to quiet the title to a piece of real estate in Rushville. It was heard in the circuit court September 16, 1908, by Judge Will M. Sparks of this city.

The court held that the allegations of the complaint were true, that John Collier had sold the north half of lot number five in Cherry Grove addition to Rushville, to his wife, the plaintiff in the case, February second, 1896. The finding of the court shows that shortly after that John Collier left the State, and that at no time after that date was the plaintiff able to learn the place of residence of her former husband.

The finding further shows that after February 26, 1896, Mary C. Collier had been in peaceable possession of the real estate. The minor son, Henry N., was a co-defendant with his father, but the court held that he had no interest whatsoever in the real estate.

John Collier came to Rushville early in life from Cincinnati, where he was born and reared. A license was issued in Rushville to Mary C. Carson and John Collier Christmas day, 1875, and the couple was married three days later, December, 28, 1875.

YEGGMEN ARE VERY ACTIVE ONCE MORE

Their Appearance in This Part of State calls Forth Advice Regarding Protection.

NOMADIC BAND OF THIEVES

Yeggmen are again working in this territory and it would be well for stores and offices to see that their places of business were well closed and their valuables protected, as there is certain to be a raid here soon by these nomadic band of thieves.

The other night thieves entered the little hardware and general store of Watkins & Craft at Lincoln, a hamlet in Howard county, cracking the safe and getting away with a good amount of loot, securing about $75 in cash and between three and four hundred dollars worth of stamps and postoffice supplies, the postoffice being in the building.

The little town is on the Pennsylvania railroad and it is supposed that the safe was blown just as a train was passing and that this drowned the noise of the explosion as no one in the village heard any unusual noise during the night, other than the passing trains, which run through the hamlet at a speed of fifty miles an hour, but the citizens have become accustomed to this and are seldom awakened, especially in the latter part of the night.

WANTED--ONE COUNTY LEADER

Two asked more pennance

ed in this art of amalgamating bolters. He and his newspaper have been agitators in the Sixth district for the last few years. Wayne county, through his influence, has made itself so distasteful to Republicans in many of the other counties of the district that many have expressed the sentiment that he would never vote for a Wayne county man.

"You need never expect me to vote for a Wayne county man," said a Noble township farmer the other day. "And I am not talking for myself but for a lot of farmers that I know."

Anyway, Mr. Leeds is the official amalgamator. He has been amalgamating in Henry, Fayette and Union counties all ready. Some have been looking for him in Rush county, but if he has showed up yet, he came in in disguise, and then slipped right out again. He was expected to have come to Rushville yesterday since he was in Connorsville and Newcastle Monday afternoon and in Liberty Monday night.

The failure of Mr. Leeds to continue the attempts at organization in Rush county is looked upon as fear of failure by many.

The Wayne county men, it is said, have been assisted in their movements here by a certain Democrat who formerly was a Republican, but left the party when he did not think he was receiving due attention. It is understood that he has been pointing out likely prospects for county chairmen and sacking the Wayne county agitators on them.

The meetings at Newcastle, according to the Courier of that city was attended by fifteen men, some of whom had been county office holders and had much preferment in the Republican party. The Connorsville News does not name the number that attended the meeting there.

The News says that Mr. Leeds merely came there to sound the local sentiment and not to form an organization, as his time was limited. Leeds did not appoint a county chairman there. The News says Leeds "found quite a number of well known local leaders receptive and ready to espouse the new cause with certain local limitations."

If the charges of George Lockwood, editor of the Marion Chronicle be true, there will be no "certain local limitations." He declares and he seems to carry the proof under his hat, that the third party is to be organized locally by counties for no other purpose than to defeat the county option program of the Republican party. He declares that county tickets will be put in the field only where the Republican party is in power, so that the vote may be dissipated to some extent and defeat the Republican party.

MT. JACKSON SAID TO HAVE FAST TEAM

Locals Will be up Against Hardest Proposition of Season Sunday—Whitridge Will Pitch.

STONECIPHER TO BE ON LINE

According to "dope" the Rushville team will stack up against one of the best teams in the State Sunday when the Mt. Jackson Athletics of Indianapolis plays here. The Athletics have played good ball this year and are at present considered the best team in Indianapolis. Al Whitridge, formerly of the Reserves and known to local fans will be in the box for Mt. Jackson. If the Rushville team gets away with this game it is capable of meeting any team in the State. The Rushville team will present as an added attraction, Jack Stonecipher. Stonecipher, known to all fans as the man with the big voice will be on the coaching line for the locals and should add a lot of pep to the game. Avery will do the pitching and Murray will play third. The game will be called at 3 o'clock.

REMONSTRANCE WAS SUSTAINED

the crossing at Main street and the C. H. & D. railway, he was satisfied that the only way to repair it was to take up the brick street for 10 or 15 feet on the north side of the tracks and raise the street to the level of the rails. Motion was deferred until the next meeting in order to give the city engineer time to prepare an estimate of the cost.

Since the improvement of Hanna street with cement gutters, curb and sidewalk was started a peculiar situation has arisen. The street has never been graded and the cement gutter is four to seven inches above the street. In order to protect the gutter and get the good for which the improvement was intended, the street will have to be graded. It was estimated that fifteen cars of gravel would be required. It was left with the street committee for further investigation.

The streets of the city according to several of the councilmen are in the worst shape they have been in in years. It was pointed out that many of the streets, especially Ninth and First are full of holes and bumps. Councilman Kelley moved that the council purchase six cars of crushed stone and that the street commissioner be ordered to repair them.

The preliminary resolution for the improvement of Fourth street from Harrison to Morgan was passed and August 6 was set for the time to hear remonstrators.

At the last meeting Mayor Black called for a report to be submitted by the special water committee. Dr. Parsons gave a verbal report but the mayor was not satisfied. His Honor wanted to know the cost of the pumps and Dr. Parsons refused to give any figures as the committee had power to act and did so. He told the mayor however that the bills for the pumps would be submitted at the next meeting. Dr. Parsons stated that the city was preparing to drill a well on the W. A. Jones land east of the city. The pumps on the two wells have been installed and will be in operation in a few days.

City engineer Cameron reported that the sidewalk in Arthur street were according to specifications and recommended that the city accept the work.

The school board was granted permission to draw its salary for the year.

Supt. Mahin told the council that provision should be made for the charging of a minimum rate for users of water meters. He suggested that consumers using meters be charged not less than $5 per year whether they used that amount of water or not. Dr. Parsons agreed with Mr. Mahin and stated that since the rates were cheap and not enough to cover the expense of running the plant, a minimum fee would be proper. Councilman Newhouse opposed the plan and stated that if the rates were too low, raise them and not charge a man for something he did not get. The question was left with the water committee to report at the next meeting.

In the council bills was $112.26 additional water rebate. This makes a total of over $500 refunded for money paid for sprinkling during 1911.

BUILDS CEMENT BRIDGES

J. A. Anderson Superintends Work in This County.

J. A. Anderson, a prominent farmer of Blue River township, has rented his farm and is supervisor of a bridge gang in Rush county, where they have been erecting a number of cement bridges, says the Greenfield Reporter. Two of the bridges, each of a 75-foot span, are placed over Six Mile creek, one at the Samuel Pitts farm, east of Westland and the other is three-quarters of a mile north. They are handsome and durable structures, and one of them required two car loads of 5000 sacks each of cement, which was interlaced with several tons of bridge steel.
